Who Am I?

This is a quick get-acquainted activity that works in almost any training.

Read a brief description of each participant: where they work, job title, something else about them (ask this when they register). Ask the participants to guess who you are describing.

Alternatively, if the group is large or time is short, put participants into small groups. Give each group pieces of paper with descriptive information about each participant in their group and have them guess who is being described. Number of the pieces of paper so you can quickly give them the right answers.
